FROM BRRR TO AHHH? Grant County was blanketed in snow last week. Forecasters said sunshine could return on Tuesday with temperatures in the 30s with a high in the 40s on Wednesday. Thursday's temperature was expected to hit the 50s, with temperatures in the upper 40s and low 50s over the weekend. The trees and hills along Dry Ridge-Mt. Zion Road were cloaked in winter white. Sheriff won't enforce gun mandates

By Jamie Baker-Nantz
Editor

Grant County Sheriff Chuck Dills said he will not enforce any mandates, regulations or rules restricting firearms.

"Now, more than ever, I believe we – as American citizens – need to be able to protect ourselves and our families from the dangers of a broken world. I also believe it is my duty, as the sheriff of Grant County, to protect our citizens and their Constitutional rights," Dills wrote in a letter that he posted on Facebook.

> "I will NOT enforce any legislation that violates the United States Constitution and our Second Amendment Rights."

> Grant sheriff

He said the reason he decided to compose the letter was because he's been receiving numerous calls, emails and inquiries from the public about his stance on the Second Amendment.

Reed said the fake money appeared in the community before Christmas and persisted for several weeks.

Crews ready for snow's return

By Bryan Marshall
Staff Writer

Several days of bad weather and icy roads have not depleted the county road department's resources to make travel safe for residents.

A little more than half of the department's 3,000 tons of salt, sand and cinder mix remains, said Steve Tatum, Grant County Road Department supervisor.

In addition, Tatum said he just received a new supply of straight salt for a total of about 300 tons.

Regardless of any future snowfall or slick conditions, the road department should have no problem meeting the need to treat the roads with a seven-truck crew, said Tatum.

"We have plenty of all of it," he said. "We don't pretreat any roads because I don't think it does any good. Usually, when the snow starts, I'll look at the radar and see where the back edge of it is. We'll start when it's about an hour from being over."

Areas with bad hills, including ones on Dry Ridge-Mt. Zion Road and Sherman-Newtown Road, usually are in the worst condition when inclement weather hits, according to Tatum, so the crews try to treat those quickly.

Police discover babysitter 'cooking' meth

By Jamie Baker-Nantz
Editor

Two Dry Ridge men have been charged with drug related offenses, after police responded to a tip that methamphetamine was being made inside a home on Ridge Road on Feb. 3.

Grant County Sheriff's Deputy Tony Stiger and Kentucky State Police Trooper Josh Whitton responded to the home at 255 Ridge Road and discovered an active meth lab.

Inside of the home were a 9-year-old child and her babysitter, whom police have charged with manufacturing methamphetamine.

James Cook, 31, of Dry Ridge, was charged with manufacturing methamphetamine, first offense; unlawful possession of methamphetamine, first degree; trafficking in a controlled substance; possession of drug paraphernalia and child endangerment.

Police also charged James L. Fretto, 43, who lived at the address, with possession of drug paraphernalia, possession of a controlled substance (meth) and possession of marijuana.

Both men were lodged in the Grant County Detention Center.

Grant County Sheriff Chuck Dills said the case remains under investigation and will be sent to the Grant County grand jury.

Public input needed on transportation survey

By Bryan Marshall
Staff Writer

The Kentucky Transportation Cabinet is looking down the road as it plans for the state's future transportation needs.

KYTC officials are in the initial stages of updating their 20-year long range transportation plan and public input is needed.

In determining the transportation needs, the updated plan will consider changes in communities, freight movement, financial resources, economic development, rural and urban transportation, the environment and other transportation issues.

The plan will be a policy guide with goals, objectives and strategies to address the core transportation opportunities and challenges facing the state.

The Kentucky Transportation Cabinet has designed and will widely distribute a confidential public survey to gauge the transportation expectations of all those who travel the state as part of the planning process.

The "Your Turn" survey will until Feb. 25 and includes 19 questions concerning demographics, transportation needs and desires and funding options.

"The most important element of the planning process is the conversation with the community," said Nancy Wood, public information officer for Kentucky Transportation Cabinet District 6 Office. "This survey initiates that conversation across the state. What the planners will learn from the conversation will be utilized in the drafting of the vision of the state's transportation system in 2035 and the goals and objectives that will frame what work needs to be done to achieve that vision."

Once the survey period is complete, the responses will be tabulated and analyzed with the results of the survey shared with the members of the long range plan team, a statewide stakeholder group and the public.

The information, along with an analysis of the existing conditions of all modes of transportation in the state, will be used to develop a draft plan expected to be released for public review and comment by late fall of 2013. The desired completion date for the plan is early 2014.

A link to the "Your Turn" survey and other transportation information can be found by visiting www.transportation.ky.gov and clicking on the "Your Turn" survey link. The survey also can be accessed directly at yourturn.transportation.ky.gov.

This direct link will also provide compiled survey results in late 2013, as well as other information throughout the update of the plan.

Paper surveys are available at KYTC highway district offices, Area Development District offices, Metropolitan Planning Organization offices and the Transportation Cabinet Office Building, 200 Mero St., Frankfort

For more information or to request a survey, call (502) 564-3419 weekdays from 8 a.m. - 4:30 p.m.

Willoby works Presidential Inauguration

By Jamie Baker-Nantz
Editor

Rick Willoby of Williamstown was part of the Presidential Inaugural parade in Washington. He was less than 20 feet away from the president. Photo submitted

Rick Willoby, of Williamstown, got what he calls the "opportunity of a lifetime" when he was part of a security detail during the presidential inauguration in Washington, D.C. on Jan. 21.

Willoby, a lieutenant with the Lexington Police Department, was among 28 officers, who provided security along the parade route.

He was about 20 feet from Pres. Barack Obama and his wife, Michelle Obama, as they strolled along Pennsylvania Avenue.

Willoby was stationed between 10th and 11th Streets along the parade route.

"He (the president) walked right by us. It was an honor to see that," Willoby said.

The Lexington officers, along with others from the Louisville Metro Police Department and Kentucky State Police, were among the 90 police agencies or 2,600 officers involved in the security detail that assisted the D.C. Metro Police, the Secret Service and military in providing security.

Local officers left Kentucky on Jan. 19 by charter busses. Once arriving in Washington, they were given security briefings and were sworn in as U.S. Marshals. They returned home on Jan. 22.

In addition to Willboy, troopers Jeremy Moore and Chris Larison, from KSP Post 6 in Dry Ridge, were also part of the detail.

Willoby, who volunteered for the assignment, said the planning started back in August.

"There was a lot of detail like hotels, uniforms, transportation," he said. "It was an in-depth process."

Participating in the parade detail did not cost local agencies. Willoby said they will be reimbursed by the D.C. Metro Police Department for their time and equipment.

While this was Willoby's first time to be part of an inaugural parade, it was the third time Lexington police had been invited.

In his position as a lieutenant in the special operations section of the Lexington Police, Willoby is used to organizing special events. He coordinated the Lexington Police Department's involvement in security for the Vice Presidential Debate held last fall at Centre College in Danville.

"I've worked a lot of specialty events like that but the inauguration was on a much larger scale, but it was well planned," Willoby said.

"This was a once in a lifetime deal. I think it was a prestigious thing, just to be that close to the President, that pretty neat. I'm glad I got to do it," Willoby said.

He said the officers prepared for cold weather, but were lucky that the temperatures during the parade stayed in the 40s, with no snow or rain.

Willoby, a graduate of Grant County High School, knew he wanted to work in public service. He comes from a family of community minded individuals, including his grandfather, Lee Lanter, who served as county attorney; a great uncle, Otis Lanter, who served as the Commonwealth Attorney and his great uncle, Dale Fortner, who was a captain/commander with the KSP. His mother, Marylee Willoby, also served as coroner for many years.

"The law enforcement thing was always in the back of my mind," he said.

Willoby first attended the University of Kentucky, then transferred to Eastern Kentucky University, where he received his degree in police administration. He's currently working on his master's degree and celebrates 25 years with the Lexington Police this year.

'I like what I do and feel fortunate to have a good job and to be a part of a lot of the things I wouldn't have had an opportunity to do anywhere else," he said.

For whom the bells toll

Connecticut tragedy illustrates need for focus on social skills, intervention

Lisa
LAKE-ROEDEMEIER

On Friday, Dec. 21, 2012 at 9:30 a.m. church bells rang 26 times and America observed a moment of silence for the victims of the Sandy Hook Elementary school shooting.

The entire world has been affected by this unspeakable act visited upon tiny, helpless, innocent children and their protectors.

The two burning questions in our minds and hearts are "Why?" and "What can we do to stop this from happening again?"

Unfortunately, we will never be able to fully and satisfactorily answer either one. That should not stop us from trying.

Common sense tells us that this is a multi-faceted problem. Gun control legislation, the mental health system, physical plant security in schools and even the culture of violence in entertainment are all on the table as necessary pieces of the solution puzzle. Is there anything else we can do? I think so.

Many people believe Adam Lanza snapped — that he was temporarily insane. However, experts such as Katherine Newman at Johns Hopkins University, say not so.

Newman, co-author of "Rampage: The Social Roots of School Shootings," found that most of these young male shooters evolved — or devolved -over a long time and a litany of social failures.

Social failure is complicated.

Typically, there is no hard line crossed. It is, instead, an on-going struggle for the socially fragile individual trying to gain favor with peers.

Unfortunately, as Newman points out, sometimes the socially desperate individual will concoct a horrific act against society and publicize his intentions to carry out this act in a last ditch effort to gain social favor.

Once committed, he must follow through, or face yet another — perhaps the final — social failure.

Without question, many children struggle socially and never become mass killers.

But, could we do a better job identifying and treating the ones who could be headed down that slippery slope? Again, I think so.

If you look at the pictures of Adam Lanza, James Holmes and others, they have a far away, vacant look in their eyes.

In pictures taken years before they kill, these individuals appear disconnected. And, despite their histories of dysfunction, each one fell through the cracks of necessary treatment and intervention.

What can we do? I believe we need to address social skills and appropriate social interaction from day one in the classroom.

I realize many teachers already do many activities to promote social harmony and awareness. And, yes, parents have both an obligation and a role to play in emotional and social development.

But, we have a crisis on our hands; so, rather than shuffle blame or responsibility, I would like to offer another piece of the solution puzzle.

Beginning in kindergarten, I propose a daily session identifying appropriate responses to a variety of life circumstances. These sessions could potentially identify at-risk students.

Role-playing appropriate social behavior could be also be beneficial. Kids love to act!

Worst case, we might stop a bully or teach a timid child how to deal with one. And, finally, planting the seeds of kindness, through small acts of decency or charity, seems like a no-brainer.

Of course, the curriculum and activities should be designed relevant to the issues of students at each particular grade level. But the bottom line is — at any age — placing emphasis on goodness can do us no harm.

The bells toll for 20 precious children and the six educators/heroes who tried to save them. Now, in their memory, we must do all we can to prevent such tragedies.

Ask your elected officials to support funding for mandatory social skills training and intervention in the classroom. In the future, let our school bells and church bells ring for a free and safe society.

A WORD FROM OUR READERS

Americans need to read the Bible, pray

Nov. 6, 2012, was far more than a general election. It was a referendum on the soul of America. Every patriotic, pro-moral American has reason to be deeply concerned and saddened by the outcome for the first in our history. Americans voted for a party platform that intentionally tried to omit God and advanced many positions that the Bible specifically condemns.

God is still on his throne and has vested all authority in heaven and earth in Jesus Christ. His son is King of Kings. (Rev. 19:16) and all rule on earth is subject to him. (Eph. 1:20-23) I am tired of politicians ending speeches with "God bless America" while standing for every ungodly practice out there.

The people of certain states voted to sanction gay marriage and voted to allow use of marijuana. I am tired of courts that legislate laws instead of just interpreting the law. I am tired of people letting the government become the "new" God of this age, granting blessings to evil doers and punishing the righteous. People say they are against these things but voted to continue it. Most people said they thought the country was on the wrong path but voted to continue down it. Why won't people just be honest and admit they like the "gravy train" they are on and don't care whether God brings judgment or not… oh but he will.

To all Americans, you must read the bible and pray to God that all politicians start voting and standing up to the morals and beliefs of God's Holy Bible. Also, as Americans, we must practice Christian morals and beliefs in our homes with our children and families and live the holy way.

Why did Democrats re-elect Obama

Eleven thousand Americans are put on food stamps everyday and still we (the Democrats) have re-elected the communist Hussein Obama for a second term. Newsweek calls it the second coming. Unbelievable, unconscionable, unforgiving.

Community support appreciated for Salvation Army

Thanks to those who volunteered their time and effort in order to make Grant County Salvation army kettle drive a success.

Thanks to those who gave their time to ring the bells at such a busy time of year and thanks to those who stopped to donate.

It's the spirit and compassion of Grant County citizens that make it possible to reach out to others in need.

Money collected through the Kettle Drive will be used throughout the year for emergency assistance as well as helping many with their medicine, utilities and rent. Salvation Army money is also used to send 50 to 60 kids to a week summer camp.

A big thank you to Wal-Mart for providing a place for our bell ringers to set up their kettles.

DOWN AND DIRTY

Don't forget about what's in the root cellar or freezer

Perhaps this can be a reminder of the payoff of "putting up" the garden in spring, summer and fall: we have extended our homegrown eating pleasure into the winter months with some basic preservation methods. If you froze, dried, canned or otherwise preserved fresh fruits and vegetables in 2012 do not forget about them (or horde them for some unreasonable time.)

First, open the freezer and assess what's there: blanched Romano beans with some ice crystals forming inside the freezer bag? Plan a stew for dinner. A big bag of grilled corn (from Gallrein's, which you cannot beat) sliced from the cob? This corn is so sweet we just use it as a side dish with a little salt and pepper. The tomato and zucchini mixture is holding up well so I will search out anything else that is starting to look freezer-weary.

Spring peas are ready to be steamed in a little water and finished off almost sautéed in olive oil with some garlic. These were blanched briefly, iced down to cool, drained and frozen in deli containers. Better than grocery bought from the frozen vegetable aisle.

On the pantry shelves I can reach for canned tomatoes for my cottage cheese or chili; lacto-fermented green beans go great with roasted potatoes and olives. Next I will make a salad of pickled beets, walnuts and blue cheese. Some blackberries preserved in balsamic vinegar was great on vanilla ice cream, I know that sounds weird, but it was really good. That plum compote would be good on pork. And of course, Andy's oatmeal has our dried apples, figs, persimmons and pears in it; the combination made more complete with peaches from Mulberry Orchard. My husband's routine peanut butter and jelly is not complete without my blueberry or blackberry jam. How much to shelve is a calculation based on how many sandwiches need to be made before the berries come ripe again.

Root vegetables

There are many vegetables that do not need to be transformed from their fresh state to be preserved for later. For example: we are eating turnips from mid-summer that I just tucked away in a plastic bag in the back of the crisper drawer. I like to eat turnips raw and after several months chilled in the refrigerator these turnips not only remain crisp but they have largely lost any of their heat. I am also getting turnips from my friend Janice Walls and her later season harvest taste as fresh as one's just pulled from the ground. This is why people used to eat turnips…they lasted and they fed you and your family through the winter. This is no lowly vegetable.

And, at my fingertips in our basement, I have loads of potatoes stored on slated racks. I admit they are getting a little shriveled but quite frankly once they are roasted, stemmed or mashed no one would suspect anything other than perfect potato. The winter squash are holding up well, as we monitor for any decay which means you get eaten next.

I do realize I am obsessed with all aspects of food but it didn't seem like I went to great measures to stock up for the winter and 2012 was a busy season that took me out of the kitchen more often than not. Still we have good food that we grew and we have chicken, eggs and lamb to make the meal complete. I am so grateful for each animal, fruit and vegetable, perhaps that's where the obsession comes from.

And, I must share this last anecdote about the early summer harvest. My friend Mary Courtney gave me a big, beautiful head of Napa cabbage back in June sometime. We enjoyed that Napa cabbage cooked, raw, on BLTs, and as an experiment in freshness. I kid you not; I have one lone piece of Napa cabbage in a little zip lock baggy in the refrigerator today (yes, February 2013). I will deliver it back to Mary as a symbol of how great our local farms and farmers are.

I used to love to go to Sam's club. When I was going to school in Memphis, Tenn, I would swing by and "visit" the store to look around and then make my rounds for the free samples and that would be my lunch (Hey! Don't judge me. It was good eats and it was free!)

But here was the problem. I wasn't a member of Sam's club. I always felt like an outsider. I didn't have a Sam's Club card, no Sam's Club badge, not even a Sam's Club T-shirt. No matter how many times I was there, I never was truly part of Sam's Club. I always worried that what if they found out that I didn't have a card and then booted me out for eating all their samples. Where would I get my free lunch at? Oh....the horror!

Then something changed. What was it you may ask? It was one of the sweet ladies that checked the cards at the front. As I came in, she asked to see my card and I told her that I was not a member but just wanted to look around. Now most of the greeters would just give me a look like "oh, you are one of those cheap guys!" and then pass me on through reminding me that I couldn't buy anything. Even though I was allowed in, I didn't feel welcomed or wanted. In fact, I often felt like they couldn't wait for me to get out of there (probably because of the rounds I made for the samples.) But this woman did something different. She said, "Would you like to become a Sam's club member? I can show you how. It is really easy."

Now, after all the times I had been through those doors and even though I knew how to become a member, this was the first time someone had actually asked me to join their "club". So since this lady was so sweet, and she had such a sweet smile and spirit about her… I couldn't say no. I joined and soon I was walking around Sam's club flashing my fancy membership card to everyone around me (especially those other mean greeters that used to give me the mean looks!)

Now, she did charge me to join the club (boo!)...but at least she invited me in. I wonder how many people would love to be part of God's kingdom and a part of a local church family yet just have never had anyone actually ask them or tell them how to become a Christian. Let me ask you, do you know anyone around you in your life who might be waiting for you to simply say, "Hey, want to go to church with me this Sunday?" You might be surprised how many people will say yes when you simply ask. So..... get to asking!

MAN ON A MISSION

By Camille McClanahan
Editorial Assistant

Earl Hampton began a journey on Feb. 1.

Hampton started a 200 mile walk from Prestonsburg to Frankfort that will culminate for I Love Mountains Day on Feb. 14.

The "I Love Mountains Day" is to raise awareness of the destruction caused by mountaintop removal for the purpose of mining for coal.

Hampton, a minister at the Vineyard of Grant County, attended I Love Mountains Day in 2012 and thought about how he could get involved. He then signed up to receive an article from Kentuckians for the Commonwealth.

He then did research on how to become a part of Footprints for Peace.

Hampton is doing this 200-mile walk for people to be more conscious about how the Earth is taken care of.

"We are walking for a sustainable future," Hampton said.

Hampton stressed that it was important as a minister to take on the role of caring for God's earth.

"I am walking to make people more aware of how we take care of the Earth and how the Earth is cared for by other people," said Hampton.

> "Before the world changes, you have to change your world."
> - Earl Hampton
> pastor of Vineyard

Hampton and his wife Rebecca, began a four-week sermon on Feb. 3 about 'God's Earth - Reverse the Curse.'

Hampton won't be alone on his journey through the Red River Gorge and the coalfields as he'll be posting photos and videos on his Facebook page. There will also be general updates on www.footprintsforpeace.org.

Over a 14-day period, 12 people from different states, including two monks and professors from Xavier University, will cover 13 to 18 miles a day.

The group will be camping in several different places along the way, including Catholic churches, Montessori's and VFW halls.

Each day they will plan their stops and will be on the road by 9 a.m. and end their day between 3 and 5 p.m.

The group will also have access to a resource van filled with food, water and basic first aid supplies.

They will take five minute breaks every three miles or so.

Hampton has competed in 5k's often and has done some walking to prepare for his trip.

"I have prepared by getting a walking stick, some good hiking boots and some weather proof gear," said Hampton.

But Hampton thinks that spiritual preparedness is important too, by asking, "What do I want to learn from this?"

Hampton hopes people will continue to grow and be aware of the environment.

"We need to do something now that way our kids will have something in the future," said Hampton.

He said that the 200 mile walk was a shock to some people in the beginning.

"I think sometimes we need a 'shock'. If it shocks you, you know it's working and sometimes it can shock you in a good way, enough for people to wake up." said Hampton.

Hampton emphasized that it was important for people to have awareness.

"It is our job to take care of the Earth," said Hampton.

He also stressed that people need to care for the environment and be mindful of the resources they use.

"Before the world changes, you have to change your world." said Hampton.

LADY DEMONS - 66, SAYRE - 52

By Haleigh Jacobs
Sports Correspondent

The Williamstown Lady Demons are winding down their regular season as a strong and united team that are sure to be a threat in upcoming seasons as the young players further develop in the off season.

The Lady Demons faced Sayre on Jan. 31 at home in a game that Williamstown dominated in the second half, leaving Sayre unable to catch up.

While the first half of the game was tight, the Lady Demons came onto the court after halftime with a renewed momentum and scored 20 points in the third quarter. Their intensity was continued in the final quarter of the game where the Lady Demons scored 22 points to end the game with a solid lead of 66-52.

Lady Demons head coach Kasey Kennedy strives to serve as a leader to her team both on and off the court.

"As a female I've always wanted to be a good example to my girls of what can happen if they have a strong work ethic," she said. "All of my girls know that my job as a teacher comes before the basketball floor, and how much importance I place on education. I also try to relate what they do as basketball players to real life situations."

Kennedy knows the importance of her role and the influence that she can have on the lives of the young ladies that she coaches.

"I think with females at the ages that I coach it can be hard to have confidence and mental toughness. Those two things are so important in real life that they get emphasized a lot in practice and in games," Kennedy said. "It will help them later on in life when things may not be going their way, or when things get tough for them."

Kennedy realizes that her players may not always appreciate her philosophy in practices and in games, but hopes that they will become stronger adults due in part to her influence.

"I always let them know that just because something's hard doesn't mean you give in or give up," she said. "I think it's hard to digest at their age, but I hope that once they get out on their own and outside of Williamstown that they are able to better understand where I was coming from during their time here."

The Lady Demons will play their season's final home game on Feb. 9 against Gallatin County. The game will begin at 2:30 p.m.

The Grant County youth boys second/third grade college division Florida Gators were undefeated 13-0 in the regular season and 2-0 in tournament play. Sport: Varsity Cheerleading Coach: Alicia Johnson

What do you expect from your players? I expect my cheerleaders to be positive, enthusiastic, spirit leaders.

Outlook for the upcoming season: Our future is bright! My cheerleaders are young and determined. Each year the girls continually improve, so this season will be better than the last in respect to gymnastics, more difficult stunts, and better athleticism overall.

Who are your top returning players? Madyson True is wonderful at stunting and creating cheers and dances. She is also my only senior this year. We will look to Mady for her natural leadership. However, all 12 of my returning cheerleaders are outstanding in some way and deserve recognition.

Who are the newcomers on the team that have the chance to make a difference? Katie Richie is growing tremendously…not in height since she's only 4 feet 9 inches , but with her gymnastics and stunting. Kyndra Carmichael's gymnastics, and Hayley Mullins' solid moves, determination and stunting knowledge will all be excellent additions to our squad.

What are some of your team's strengths? Amber Perkins, Sarah Hicks, and Jacy Adams are phenomenal tumblers. People will be very impressed with all three of them this year. Belle Ridder, Hannah Kinsey, and Stephanie O'Banion have outstanding jumps that look effortless at times. Macy Goetz, Ariana Johnson, and Sami Tallant are strong in stunting and are great dancers with fun facials to watch. Ali Mann, Morgan Threlkeld, and Kayla Harrell are excellent in stunt groups and are able to stunt with different people & difficult positions with ease. All 16 have great attitudes!

What areas do you want to improve upon? We are increasing our difficulty levels in gymnastics and stunting. Because we don't have the mats or facilities here at school to do these safely, we are taking private classes at Pride Cheer Academy in Florence.

What are your team goals for the season? To continually improve in all aspects of cheerleading, to work together as a team, and to support one another on and off the floor.

Who is the team to beat this season? Our job is to support the ball players and be good role models of our school. We don't compete during the games. We're there to generate spirit and support, so it has been easy to do that and make cheer friends with several area schools like Grant, Owen, Gallatin and Walton-Verona.

Do you have a team motto or code that you follow and instill in your players? "Work as a squad, cheer as a squad, and be safe as a squad. Behavior is learned. Be aware that someone is always watching and learning from you, so be the outstanding young ladies I know you are!"

Coach
Angie Williams

Sport: Williamstown High School 360 Dance Team

What do you expect from your players? Respect, hard work, punctuality and to have fun.

Outlook for the upcoming season: To work hard to earn a bid to the U.S. final competition.

Who are your top returning players? What makes them top players? I have two returning seniors, Cierra and Ashley, who show determination and skill to the other members.

Who are the newcomers on the team that have the chance to make a difference? We are a small team, so we only have one newcomer, Emily, who is a senior and determined to do her best.

What are some of your teams strengths? Teamwork and the love of dance.

What areas do you want to improve upon? Technical skills

What are your team goals for the season? To win a bid to U.S. finals and place

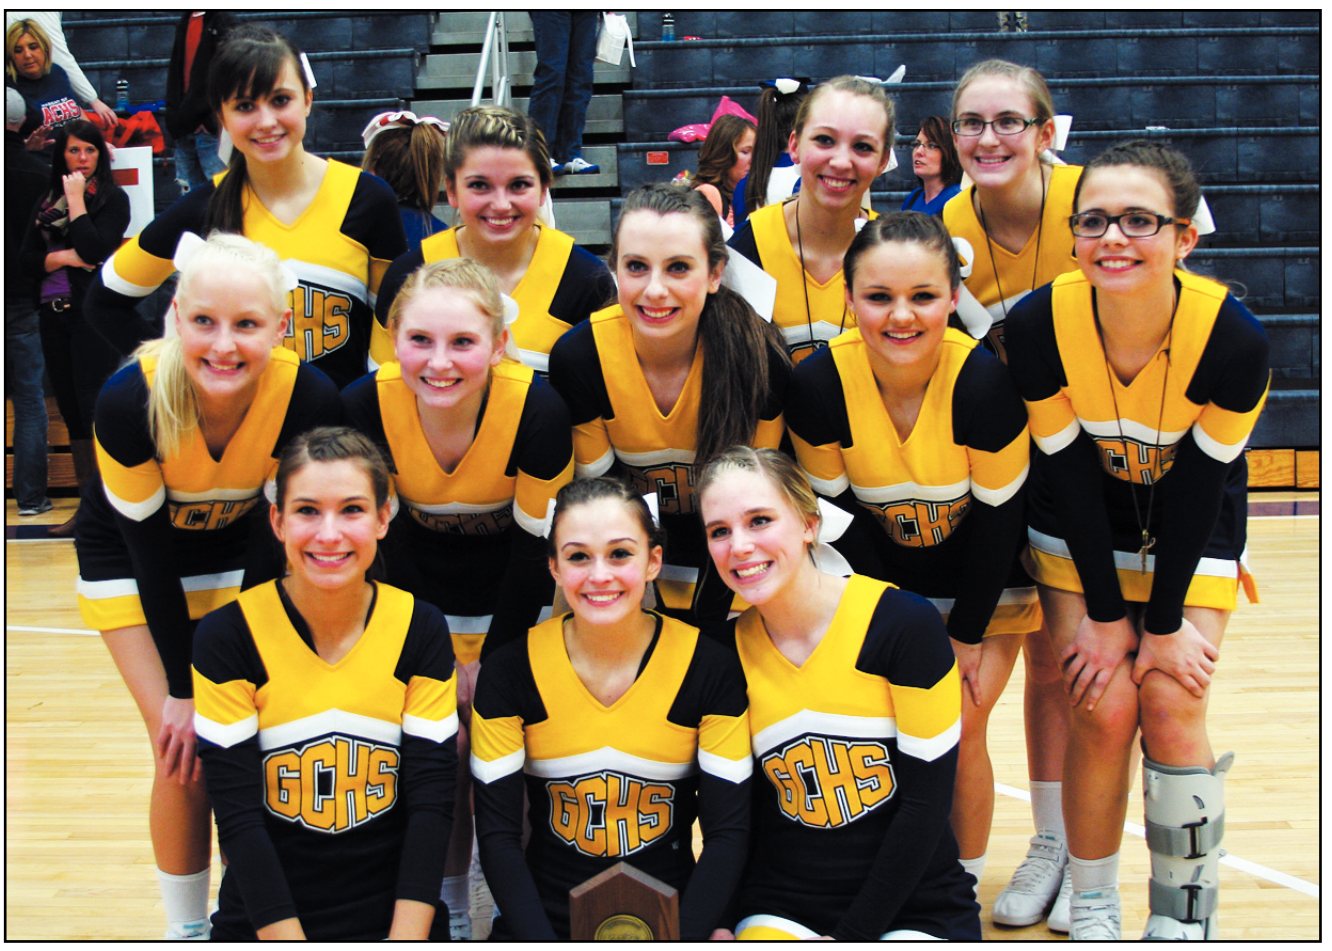

Who is the team to beat this season? All we compete against, varies by competition.

Do you have a team motto or code that you follow and instill in your players? Practice like you are performing for a trophy.

Coach Kat Disney

What do you expect from your players? Respect, positive attitudes, good work ethic, and pride in their squad.

Outlook for upcoming season: New year, new girls, new coach and new possibilities.

Who are your top returning players? What makes them top players? Every girl is an essential part of the squad, new or returning. Each girl this year can be switched around, flyers become bases, bases become backspots. The girls are very versatile this year.

Who are the newcomers on the team that have the chance to make a difference? We brought up eighth graders this year, something that's never been done in Grant County cheerleading.

What are some of your teams strengths? Communication, they are very encouraging. They are learning what type of encouragement works for each girl.

What areas do you want to improve on? Conditioning

What are your team goals for the season? To run a mile after every practice

Do you have a team motto or code that you instill in your players? It's hard to beat a person that never gives up.

Coach chat with Stephanie Richards

Coach Stephanie Richards

What do you expect from your team members? I expect my team members to be 100 percent dedicated to the team.

What success have you had this season? The Combination Team (boys and girls) earned first place in jazz at Jingle Bell Classic. The GCHS Crew (boys' team) earned second place in hip hop at Jingle Bell Classic. The Combination Team earned first place in hip hop at Bourbon County's "Just Keep Dreaming" competition.

Did this meet/exceed your expectations? I always have high expectations for my team, so two first place finishes meets my expectations.

Who were the top returning members? What makes them top dancers? The top returning dancers are seniors Jessica Schneider and Mariah Holloway and junior Daniel Crockett. I consider them top dancers because they lead the team by example. The other team members look up to them.

Who are the newcomers to the team that have the chance to make a difference? This year's star newcomers are Loraleigh Barnett and Dylan Tutorow. Both freshman are amazingly talented and have already stepped up as leaders on the team.

What are some of your team's strengths? The team's number one strength is their friendships with each other. They honestly enjoy each other's company and share a common vision for the success of the team.

What areas do you want to improve upon? The GCHS Dance Team (girls' team) is competing in lyrical for the first time this year. We're going to have to work on improving technique.

GUN

"While I stand by our federal government in developing legislation to better register and track weaponry, which will help law enforcement in cases where weapons are stolen or used, I will NOT enforce any legislation that violates the United States Constitution and our Second Amendment Rights," Dills wrote in the letter.

Since he posted the letter on Jan. 31, he's received more than 80 "likes."

Dills said he took an oath of office, which includes his support of the U.S. Constitution, Kentucky's Constitution and that includes the Second Amendment.

Dills, a father of five, said the tragedy that occurred at Sandy Hook Elementary in December "shook him to the core" but he doesn't believe there's an easy fix to the current epidemic of mass shootings.

"What I do know to be true is that we live in a violent world and guns are not the only factor in the equation. Extremely violent video games, news media giving 24-hour coverage to these murderous events and mental illness all contribute to this epidemic," he said.

In the month following the shooting at Sandy Hook, President Barack Obama proposed gun control measures, signing 23 executive orders and outlining a plan to tighten federal gun regulations.

Obama asked Congress to approve federal legislation that would require background checks on all firearm purchases, including those from private sellers. Obama also wants Congress to ban military-style assault weapons and place limits on high-capacity magazines.

These strict federal laws contract with Kentucky's laws and Dills said he believe they violate the Constitution.

"Banning guns is not the answer because then no one can protect themselves," Dills said. "I'm going to protect Grant County citizens and the way to do that is by upholding the Constitution."

FUNNY

"We haven't had any reports in the last two weeks, but that doesn't mean they're not making a circuit and will come back," Reed said.

"They are actually bleaching $1s and $5s and re-printing them with higher denominations," Reed said.

By using the real money, the counterfeit detector pens work on the bills, which makes it difficult for businesses to detect a fake bill.

"The way it's been working, the businesses doesn't realize it until they take a deposit to the bank and the bank catches it," Reed said.

He cautioned all business owners and the general public to stop and look at money they are being given during a transaction, even for something sold at a garage or yard sale.

"In some cases you can look at the bill and know it's not real. I mean, we're talking so bad it looks like Monopoly money, but in a rush, a person probably didn't have time to notice," Reed said.

He said often times the thieves will choose a busy time of day and make a small purchase using a large bill.

"You get a pack of cigarettes or a pop and pay with a fake $20 and you've just made money," he said.

Reed said the problem could also be attributed to technology and quality of printers on the market today.

"I believe technology has made it easier for people to make money," he said.

Reed said police had interviewed several subjects in connection with the investigation into the phony bills.

Police believe it could be someone local involved, as well as out of town visitors who travel up and down Interstate-75 exchanging the fake bills for real money.

"The public just needs to be vigilant and aware," Reed said.

Anyone with information about the fake bills or anyone who suspects they've been given a fake bill should call 859-428-1212 or 859-824-3353.

RULES for the ROAD

As KYTC crews have made preparations for clearing roadways, motorists should also be prepared for driving in snow and ice by following these tips:

• Make sure your vehicle is sufficiently winterized – check the battery, antifreeze level, heater, defroster, wipers and windshield washer.

• Check the forecast and call 511 or visit 511.ky.gov for the latest condition reports before traveling. You can also get traffic information for the District 6 counties at www.facebook.com/KYTC.District6. Avoid nonessential travel if conditions are dangerous.

• Dress warmly for the weather –in layers of loose-fitting, lightweight clothing, in anticipation of unexpected emergencies.

• Try to keep your gas tank at least two-thirds full to prevent fuel line freezing and to prepare for possible lengthy delays on the roadway.

• Carry a cell phone.

• Make sure your vehicle has an emergency care kit. It should include jumper cables, flares or reflectors, windshield washer fluid, an ice scraper, blankets, nonperishable food, a first aid kit, and traction material.

• Remember that bridges and exit and entrance ramps can be icy when other areas are not.

• Stopping in snow requires more braking distance than stopping on dry pavement – up to four times more distance. Make sure to put plenty of distance between yourself and the vehicle ahead.

• Be visible. Dull, cloudy days will cut down on visibility, so drive using low-beam headlights.

• Steer into the skid. Stay calm and ease your foot off the gas while carefully steering in the direction you want the front of your vehicle to go.

"It's been good," Tatum said about getting the roads treated without a hitch. "We've kept the roads pretty clean. It just takes time. It usually takes 10 hours to get over all of them, unless we have to plow, then it takes a little longer."

Even with snow-covered roads, there has not appeared to have been any serious accidents related to weather conditions in the area.

The Kentucky Office of Highway Safety recently released that there were no highway fatalities in the counties, including Grant, that make District 6 of the Kentucky Transportation Cabinet.

Out of the 12 districts that make up the KTC, District 6 was the only one that had did not have a highway fatality.

There were however about 50 cars that either slid off the side of Hwy. 22 at the bottom of Delia Hill or were stranded on the side of the road due to the icy, slick conditions on Feb. 1.

Grant County Sheriff Chuck Dills said the vehicles were stuck for over an hour until the highway department was able to put salt on the hill.

Maintenance crews in KYTC District 6 have responsibility for clearing 2,000 miles of state-maintained highways in the counties of Grant, Boone, Bracken, Campbell, Carroll, Gallatin, Harrison, Kenton, Owen, Pendleton and Robertson.

That equates to more than 4,500 "lane miles" – all driving lanes from rural state roads to interstate highways.

District 6 currently has 19,000 tons of salt on hand in its storage domes located at the state maintenance facilities and 100 state and contracted trucks are available.

The inclement weather also has given students some time off from class.

After missing Friday, Feb. 1 and Monday, Feb. 4, Grant County Schools are up to a total of five missed days on the school year.

Four of those missed days were due to snow and road conditions while one was because of power outages.

May 21 is now the last expected day for students, barring anymore missed days.

Williamstown Independent has only had two missed days and will now close May 24 for students.
